He has also been visiting the Soviet Union since 1981, working hand in hand with them since that time. In 1982, he worked to establish the Association for Humanities Psychology Soviet Exchange Program, which exchanges hundreds of North American and Soviet teachers, psychologists and philosophers. It was from this cultural exchange program that his latest ambition has bloomed. The U.S. U.S.S.R. Global Thinking Project is a collaborative effort between the USSR Academy of Pedagogical Sciences and Georgia State University. This project is attempting to bring both of our cultures and educational techniques together through the interaction of average people.

In an attempt to solve both of our societies problems, this program will be taking a long, hard look at such issues as social, cultural, nuclear, and environmental concerns.

Through the use of hightech procedures, Hassard may be able come up with solutions to these problems. In November, Hassard and his associates will be taking six Apple Macintosh computers over to the USSR, to be used in various schools in Moscow and Leningrad. These will be linked through a complex communication network to computers here, in cities such as Los Angles, Pittsburgh and Atlanta. This link will allow a constant interaction between both schools on a daily basis. Their goal is to find solutions to our "global problems."

Hassard's long term vision is to set up such computer links worldwide to bring his dream of the world as a "living system" to life.

Most of you may be criticizing him as trying to take on the world. Well, maybe it's about time someone did exactly that.

Access Program offers aid

by Christine Houle Strobe staff

The Access Program had its third annual Alumni night Monday October 1. The Access program was formerly referred to as the Alternative Individual Development (AID) program.

At Alumni night former Fitchburg State College Students who were enrolled in the program, came back to tell the students what life is like in the real world. According to counselor, Nancy Adams Maiusseau, "It gives students a goal to strive for."

Some of the questions answered by the Alumni speakers involved, "What is life like now and how was it at FSC before?" All the speakers were in agreement about their years spent in college. They said that college was the best time of their lives and it's tough in the real world.

They also told the students to set their own priorities and to know their limits when it comes to schoolwork and partying. After each guest had spoken they all were invited to dinnerwhere the students and the Alumni had an opportunity to speak on a one to one basis.

The Access program started in 1974 for low income students who needed academic support. Every state college and a few private schools sponsor this program. At FSC, Alvin Riley, the director of the Access Program, stated "We are doing quite well, we have expanded into a number of areas."

The students enrolled in the program each have an Academic advisor who helps them with problems in all areas. The students are required to go to four mandatory sessions per week. There are also minicourses in time management, note taking, strategies for studying, and one on one tutoring sessions.

Approximately 120 students are enrolled in the two year program which is primarily for freshman and sophomore students. "Many students stay involved just for support," noted Riley.

Correction

In the October 3, 1990 issue of The Strobe, four headlines were mistakenly placed with incorrect stories. On page 1, "Dr. Sides: New teacher in Comm/Media" and "FSC welcomes Dr. Ratto," were reversed. In the Arts and Entertainment section, headlines "Revolting, yet appealing" and "Raving Madness," were reversed. We apologize for any inconvenience it may have caused our readers.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor;

l am writing in response to the commentary about Lisa Olsen that appeared in the October 3, issue of The Strobe. This article is nothing more than the pure ignorance of another reporter. Lets all run to the aid of little Miss Olsen, a sports reporter who, because of her 1978 right to be in the locker room, takes it upon herself to only interview the losing team of the day.

The players, who are in the shower or on their way out of the shower, are not only dealing with another loss, but know that they will be getting crucified once again by the papers and their ever silent New England fans. Now they have another fear, the roving reporter. Not only are they at your home, place of work, and the locker room, but now they are in the shower asking you what it feels like to

This is uncalled for. There is a time and a place for interviews and the shower is not the place. I, like many of the Patriots, feel that her presence in the shower was nothing more than a local girl getting her jollies. I have a question for all of you that are disagreeing. Why didn't she go into the winning teams locker room? Or better yet, why not into the shower of the winning team? Is it because she hasn't been watching their sweaty bodies all season long?

This incident has nothing to do with money or "macho pills". How many women out there would like to have a male reporter in the locker room or better yet in the shower conducting an interview... that's what I thought. Miss Olsen, lets not take an apology, lets blow this thing out of proportion. Who ever heard of this lady before this? The "Lets get famous quick scheme" is working and I think it is BS. I can not believe that we are letting it happen. I will not even comment on the idea of suspended players. Miss Olsen is horrified by the situation, lam horrified that it has gone this far. Pure ignorance.

Sincerely,

James Buckley

Sharon Timberlake and Joe Walsh support the United Way

Campus organizations build for United Way

by Michelle Long Strobe staff

The Adelphian society and Sigma Tau Gamma recently designed and built a float representing the United Way. The float, which took five days to build, took part in the Leominster 250th anniversary parade.

Joe Walsh and Sharon Timberlake, the student coordinators on campus for the United Way, said the float was the result of a combined effort, by Dr. LaRoe, Assistant to Academic Affairs, President Mara, and Terry Caroll, Assistant to the President building the float served to "improve relations between our two groups and provide good exposure for the Greeks on campus. We wanted to show that the Greeks on campus don't just party, they also help out the community."

According to Joe Walsh,

In the past, the Adelphians have worked on Alumni weekend, walked for hunger, and sponsored Club Boston. Sigma Tau Gamma has raised money for Multiple Sclerosis, visited nursing homes and sponsored Bacchus International, which promotes responsible drinking.

"The purpose of the student coordinators was not to raise money, but to help develop future leadership and provide students with the opportunity to show leadership in working with the United Way, "Dr. LaRoe stated.

Dr. LaRoe also pointed out the value of United Way. The United Way which is composed solely of volunteers, sponsors programs such as the YMCA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross Life Saving, and Disaster Relief. "Most of us have benefited from the United Way at some point," she added.

If anyone is interested in volunteering for the United Way, please call Dr.LaRoe at 345-2151, ext. 3499.

Programs update

by Paul Dawson Contributing writer

Do Saturday nights leave you wondering where everyone on campus has gone? On Saturday October 13, you'll know where everyone is if you come to the Pub at 8:00p.m. The Programs Committee will be sponsoring a "mocktail party" and DJ. So if your looking for a good time with no cover charge, the pub is the place to be.

Programs is also looking for volunteers to help plan for the Halloween Ball '90. On Monday October 15, at 6:00p.m. the Programs Committee will be holding a planning session, all are invited to attend. Free Pizza will be provided for those who help, so remember to come to room G-04 at 6:00p.m.

Programs is proud to present Leon Bates & The Borealis Wind Quintet, (They're not your average classical quintet, come and see what we mean) who will be playing on October 23, at 8:00p.m. in Weston Auditorium.

Programs is not so proud to announce that Comedy Night will no longer be free. Due to the rising cost of FSC's favorite event, we are forced to impose a one dollar fee for tickets. Tickets can be purchased at the information desk on Mondays at 3:00p.m.

The Programs Committee meets every Monday at 6:00p.m. in room G-04. Everyone who is interested is welcome to attend and help us plan future activities.

Craft Center has something for everyone

by Christine Houle Strobe staff

Even if you are not artistic, the Craft Center has something for you. Each fulltime student has a $3 credit which can be used towards any crafts they choose to make. These crafts include pottery, candle making, stenciling, wood plaques, beaded jewelry, leather products, silkscreening, and tie dying. "The Craft Center has a lot to offer," according to employee Julie Ann Le-Clair. However, many students are unaware of this facility.

There are instructions and books on all crafts. These documents will help to give both the beginning or the advanced artist, new and different ideas.

This semester, the Craft Center will be offering many new items, including electric wheels for pottery. All of the other necessities have been ordered to enhance the quality of crafts made by FSC students.

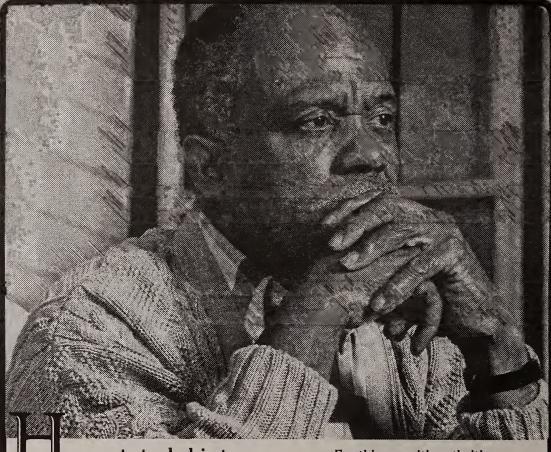

The center will be offering twelve mini-courses this semester. The fee for each course covers the cost of supplies and materials needed. Some of the courses will include tie dying, silkscreening, pottery candle making and glass etching.

Around the holidays, the Craft Mobil will be in Globby. "The crafts are quick to make and inexpensive, costing approximately 50 cents," stated LeClair.

The Craft Center is open Monday through Wednesday from 3:30p.m. to 9:30p.m., Thursday through Friday, from 6:30p.m. to 9:30p.m. It is located on the bottom floor of the Hammond Building, past SGA's office. LeClair encourages students to "Come down and pick up a pamphlet to see what we have to offer."

"Good Fellas:" good film

by Kevin Chapman Strobe staff

After a summer of big budget busts and disappointing sequels, "Good Fellas" makes going back to the theater worth $6.50.

"Good Fellas" takes the audience into the loose, dark world of big city gangsters where brotherhood and loyalty mean everything and life means nothing. Martin Scorsese is one of the few directors in Hollywood with the talent to create a film with no likable characters. He portrays a world where a man can be alive one minute, dead the next, and the butt of a joke as he lies in a pool of his own blood.

Henry Hill, the main character, is played by Ray Liotta. At first, he is a wide eyed boy who is captivated by the glamorous and exciting lives of New York City gangsters. Liotta is then gradually transformed into a vicious gangster without even feeling it. Robert DeNiro plays Jimmy Conway, Liotta's associate and partner in crime. After the biggest crime of their lives, DeNiro becomes paranoid and suspicious of his partners. Joe Pesci plays a ferocious little thug with a Napoleon complex who is more than happy to commit the most heinous crimes for his partners.

Although none of the characters possess any compassion or feeling for anything but money, Scorsese manages to keep the audience enthralled by mixing the bloody violence with shocking black humor. The world that Scorsese creates is so twisted and captivating that violent murder scenes become humorously comic.

With it's bloody violence, comedy, drama, suspense, strong acting and excellent direction, "Good Fellas" has everything a movie audience is starving for. Tenyears ago, Scorsese, DeNiro, and Pesci teamed up to make "Raging Bull," which became one of the best films of the decade, ten years from now, "Good Fellas" will be remembered

Hammer time

by Michelle Pouliot Strobe staff

Opening for M.C. Hammer's "Don't Hurt 'Em" tour for 1990 was "Vanilla Ice" a four man show featuring the only white performer in the Hammer tour. Giving a provocative 15 minute performance, the group aroused the crowd with their funky dancing and their blatant sexual gestures. Pretty boy Vanilla rocked the Centrum as his back up chanted "Go White Boy!"

Next up, "In Vogue," the svelte women of soul, slowed things down a bit. Indy, their lead, proved to be a real trooper by showing that crowd that she could still "vogue" though burdened with a cast and crutches. After a slow attempt at audience participation, the girls finished strong with an encore presentation of their smash hit "Hold On."

As the half hour intermission came to a close, it became the long awaited "Hammer Time." The stage erupted with bouncing hammers and hammer light fixtures, an energetic beginning which easily excited the Centrum's sold out crowd.

Hammer's message for the evening was freedom of expression as he put in a plug for his buddies 2 Live Crew, "If ya don't like it, ya don't have to buy it." The audience was in apparent agreement as the statement was met with a roar of admiration. Hammer went on about the importance of planning a future. The children of today are making a future for tomorrow, so we've got to help them. Hammer wishes for an end to racism, violence and crime. His speech was followed by one of his more recent hits, "Pray."

Hammer's concert performance is both realistic and impressive creating a sound better than his recorded mixes. His promising do-wop group, "Special Generation," can be heard crooning with MC on "Have You Seen Her," should not be overlooked. Hammer and company area definite must see.

"Neutral Tones" reviewed

Neutral Tones

We stood by a pond that winder day, And the sun was white as though chidden by God, And a few leaves lay on the starving sod; -They had fallen from and ash and were gray.

Your eyes on me were eyes that rove Over tedious riddles of years ago; and some words played between us to and fro On which lost the more by our love

The smile on your mouth was the deadest thing Alive enough to have the strength to die; And a grin of bitterness swept thereby Like an ominous bird a-wing...

Since then, keen lessons that love deceives, And wrings with wrong, have shaped to me Your face, the God-curst sun, and a tree And a pond edged with grayish leaves

by Kelly Buckowski Strobe staff

"Neutral Tones" by Thomas Hardy discusses the death of his love relationship. Hardy wants us to believe that he is no longer in love with "her." In actuality however, he is heartbroken by the loss of her love, but does not want to admit it. He wants the poem to sound more dramatic, therefore he writes it form the point of view of the couple, rather than himself. From the context, the reader can infer that it is only the woman who has fallen out of love.

Due to the death of their love, an overbearing tone of evilness reigns over the poem. This is partially represented through the winter setting of the poem. Descriptive phrases like "starving sod," "grin of bitterness," "ominous bird a-wing," and "God-curst sun" display this mood as well.

Hardy also incorporates morbid, ironic expressions such as, "The smile on your mouth was the deadest thing" to describe how he perceived her facial expressions at that moment.

The combination of the dreary winter images with the death oriented facial expressions reflects a neutral feeling. read

Field hockey team has bright future

by Sandy Lathrop Strobe staff

The FSC field hockey squad began the 1990 season hoping to improve after a dismal 1989 season. They have begun the season on a good note, as they are currently playing at the .500 level and have already equaled the total number of goals scored last season (11 goals).

The team opened up the season on a losing note, dropping a 2-1 overtime decision to Nichols College. They proceeded to reel off two consecutive shutouts (1-0 in overtime vs. Western New England College and 6-0 over Pine Manor College). The outstanding play of sophomore goalkeeper Gina Urbani and the offensive skills of junior Jennifer Kapenas were the keys to the Falcons' victories.

Anna Maria College stopped the team's two game winning streak with a 2-1 victory. The Falcons bounced back to upset powerhouse Maine-Farmington, 2-1.

Last Monday (Oct. 1st),

Assumption College defeated the Falcons by a score of 1-0 in overtime. Both teams displayed aggressive defense and missed a couple of good scoring chances. Amanda DeSanto scored the winning goal with two minutes left in overtime and left FSC to look forward to their next contest.

Head Coach Jane Powers noted, "We were definitely the better team. We did not play well at all, we'll have to regroup and work on things we didn't do very

FSC volleyball jelling as a team

by Cheryl Hines Strobe Staff

The Fitchburg State College volleyball team have had their share of ups and downs this season. They recently completed the Salem State Invitational with a 2-5 record (7-9 overall). The team has done extremely well as a unit, led by head coach Bob Murray. Murray has kept the team on its toes with frequent substitutions and plenty of enthusiasm.

The Falcons have a young, but talented squad this season. They started off the season against some very good teams and pulled off an upset or two in the early going games.

Last week, the Falcons defeated Umass, Worcester State, and Mass. Maritime before heading to Salem State. The highlight of the tournament for the Falcons was their 15-0, 15-6 destruction of arch-rival Salem State. They played well against powerhouses Gordon College and MIT.

The rest of the season looks to be very encouraging as the Falcons enter the heart of the MASCAC schedule. A strong showing in the conference could mean a potential tournament birth for FSC

Sterling cup rivalry set to begin

by Dave Walsh Strobe staff

Fitchburg State College and Worcester State College recently signed an agreement to create a rivalry between the two schools in athletics and extra-curricular activities.

The Student Government Association of both schools worked for more than a year to get this rivalry started. The cup was named for the town of Sterling, which is equidistant to both schools.

The winner of head-tohead competition in all of the varsity sports (women and men), in which the two schools play each other, will gain the Sterling Cup trophy to be put on display at the winners' school for one year.

For each win, the school gains one point. If the schools meet twice in one season, the school must win both games to gain one point.

James Buckley, president of Fitchburg State's SGA, stated, "The purpose of this competition is to create a friendly rivalry between the two schools and to encourage the students to become more involved in activities between the two schools."

As of October 2nd, Fitchburg State leads the competition 2-0 thanks to FSC's 6-0 win in soccer and their 3-0 win in Volleyball.

Football team moves forward

by David Walsh Strobe staff

The Fitchburg State College football team shook off the nation's longest losing streak at 36 games last season and finished with a 2-7 record.

The 1990 Falcons, under newhead coach Vin Veough, and with a slew of starters returning from last year, were extremely confident about the teams chances for a successful season.

The schedule has not played in the Falcons' favor thus far. Three of their first four games came against the top three teams in the New England Conference. ULowell defeated FSC 42-0 on opening night as the talented Chiefs manhandled the Falcons

The #1 ranked team in New England Division 3, Plymouth State, annihilated the Falcons 69-0. Plymouth State quarterback Matt Tozokos broke the ECAC touchdown record by throwing for five touchdowns in that game.

Westfield State ruined the Falcons'home opener with a 20-6 victory. The Falcons lost starting quarterback Rich LeBlanc in that game with a shoulder situation.

Former New England Conference Champion Bridgewater State defeated the Falcons 36-9, despite Jose Medina, who played well at quarterback in the wake of LeBlanc's injury.

Two FSC athletes named players of the week

by Dave Walsh Strobe staff

Junior Jennifer Kapenas captured the MASCAC player of the week honors in field hockey last week. She led the surprising Falcons to a 2-1 record for the week as she scored 6 goals and added 2 assists. Kape-nas leads the MASCAC conference with seven goals and three assists overall after three weeks of the season. She became the second Falcon in a row to pick up the player of the week honor. Goaltender Gina Urbani received the award for the week ending September 23rd.

Soccer standout Jason Malone, also picked up the MASCAC honor for his outstanding week. The conference's leading scorer (five goals, seven assists, 17 points) had an incredible week with five goals and six assists. He led the high-flying Falcons to a perfect 3-0 record (4-2 overall) last week.

Men's cross country team on winning track

by Mike Ippolito Strobe staff

Fitchburg State College's men's cross country team continued its highly successful season by easily defeating Salem State and Mass Maritime on September 28 at Coashall Park in Fitchburg. FSC dominated the meet totaling 26 to 51 points for Salem State and 52 points for Mass Maritime.

The Falcons were led by Francisco Hernandez, Jason Cullinane and Kevin Simoneon who finished 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, respectively. Hernandez, a sophomore finished in a time of 24:31 over the 4.8 mile course easily out distancing the rest of the field. His closest competitor was fellow sophomore Cullinane who crossed the line in a time of 25:15. Simoneon followed his teammates with a time of 25:46 to complete the sweep for the Falcons.

The efforts of Hernandez, Cullinane and Simoneon effectively wrapped up the meet for FSC, but the efforts of some of the other Falcons could not be overlooked.

Senior Mark Keenan finished 9th in a time of 27:55, followed by freshman Dave Chase who had a time of 28:29, which was good enough for 11th place overall. Senior Mark Middlen, with a time of 29:10, wrapped up 13th place and he was followed by Steve VanVoorhis who finished 15th in a time of 29:32.

FSC seems to be improving as the season progresses, with the young runners getting better and more experienced as the season goes on. Not only should this year be successful for FSC, but with all the young talent, it appears the future will continue to produce winning FSC track teams. The next meet for FSC is the MAS-CAC championships to be held at Westfield on October 13th.
